Hi James,

Thanks for your patience. Here is the journal's policy on theses and dissertations (https://entsoc.org/publications/publish/policies):

THESES AND DISSERTATIONS

ESA journals accept submissions that are part of a dissertation of thesis, provided the content was not commercially published. ESA journal authors reserve the rights to re-use portions or the entirety of their article published in an ESA journal in a thesis or dissertation, provided the thesis or dissertation is not commercially published.

If you need further assistance, please let me know.

Kind regards,

Susan

Hi James,

Authors can reuse the pre-peer review version of the manuscript for anything, including dissertations (with DOI link to published article) according to this page: https://academic.oup.com/pages/self_archiving_policy_b.

If you need the post peer-review version, use the permissions link (https://s100.copyright.com/AppDispatchServlet#formTop) for that.

Congratulations on your upcoming graduation.

Susan

Hello Susan & Matt,

I'm looking to get formal approval to include an article I submitted a few years back in a dissertation. The dissertation will be embargoed from public view until Dec of 2024.

Hi Dr. Faraji,

Curious if you could point me in the right direction. I'm writing up my dissertation and want to include an article I submitted to JME a few years back. The graduate school requests that we seek permission from the journal. Any clue on who I need to contact?

Sincerely,
JGM
